7.1.4. Describe the Institutional efforts/initiatives in providing an inclusive environment i.e., tolerance and harmony towards cultural, regional, linguistic, communal socioeconomic diversity and Sensitization of students and employees to the constitutional obligations. Values, rights, duties and responsibilities of citizens.

The institution offers a welcoming environment for everyone with respect for linguistic, cultural, regional, racial, socioeconomic, and other differences. The college hosts a variety of sports and cultural events that foster respect for one another. The college observes commemorative days like Women's Day, Yoga Day, Cancer Day, and AIDS Day in addition to other local holidays like Sankranti and Dasara. This fosters friendly interaction amongst those from various racial and cultural backgrounds.

There is an institute-wide code of ethics that all students, teachers, and other staff members are required to abide by, regardless of their cultural, geographical, linguistic, communal, social, or other differences.

Students are given equal opportunity to participate in numerous activities regardless of their caste, creed, religion, or geography. The institution has an NSS division to foster a sense of cohesion, order, and harmony. The NSS unit's actions in our institution work to reduce socioeconomic differences and move people toward living in harmony and tolerance. Maintaining tolerance and harmony among students is made possible in large part by the anti-ragging cell.

Since the cell's creation, there has not been a single instance of ragging reported, demonstrating its effective operation. To maintain harmony in the college, a grievances redressal committee has also been established. VVIPS also observes national and international commemorative days and events to treasure the memories and instill a sense of meaning and significance in the lives of the students and staff. The days serve as a reminder to value our founding fathers' accomplishments. The following days are among those observed at the institute:

National Youth Day: 12 January 2022 The National Youth Day (NYD) Department of Pharmacy takes the lead and plans a variety of events, including debates, elocution competitions, essay contests, and other programs in which students from many departments take an active part.

Republic Day: This holiday commemorates the 26th of January 1950, the day the Indian Constitution went into effect. The program includes of speeches honoring the enormous sacrifices made by our liberation fighters, patriotic songs sung by school children, and the message from the guest of honor.
